Continued Prosecution Application

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 3/5/2010 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. In claim 6, the phrase “a three-dimensional image is observable from an upright view and upside-down view of the figure when two of the merchandise packages ... 180 degrees upside down” is vague, confusing and indefinite because it has no clear meaning as to how a three-dimensional image is observable from an upright view and upside-down view of the figure? and there is only one (1) merchandise package is claimed.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

Art Unit: 3728

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

5. Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Densen (4,953,779).

To the extent that the Examiner can determine the scope of the claim, Densen discloses a merchandise package (Figures 2-3) comprising at least one outside surface and a figure (a single star as shown in the Figure below) having a point of symmetry shape is disposed on the outside surface (column 3, lines 28-31) in a manner such that a center of the figure is displaced from a center point of the outside surface. The merchandise package of Densen is inherently capable of providing a three-dimensional image that is observable from an upright view and upside-down view of the figure when two of the merchandise packages are juxtaposed in a manner such that one of the two merchandise packages is rotated by 180 degrees upside down.

Art Unit: 3728

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

7. Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Densen in view of The Japanese Publication No. 07-232770 to Shigeta. Densen discloses the merchandise package as above having all the limitations of the claim. Densen further discloses the figure on the outer surface of one merchandise package is identical with the figure on an another merchandise package when two of the merchandise packages are juxtaposed in a manner such that the one of the two merchandise packages is rotated by 180 degrees upside down.

To the degree it can be argued that Densen fails to show a three-dimensional image is observable from an upright view and upside-down view of the figure. Shigeta shows a container/package (see Figures 1b & 1c) having an outside surface, an image (2R) disposed on one side of the outer surface and an another image (2L) disposed on an opposite side of the outer surface which is identical to the image of the one side of the outer surface and a three-dimensional image is observable when two of the merchandise packages are juxtaposed in a manner such that one of the two packages is rotated by 180 degrees along a longitudinal direction of the container since both images (2R, 2L) on the outer surface of the container are identical. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art in view of Shigeta to modify the merchandise package of Densen by using a method of observing a three-dimensional image from two identical figures when two of the merchandise packages of Densen are juxtaposed in a manner such that one of the two merchandise packages is rotated by 180 degrees upside down to allow a user to observe a three-dimensional image.
